

UPES Welcomes Social Psychology Expert, Professor Miles Hewstone, for Academic Engagement

UPES has announced the upcoming visit of Professor Miles Hewstone, a luminary in the field of social psychology and Emeritus Professor at the University of Oxford. This visit, organised by the School of Liberal Studies and supported by UPES, presents an exceptional opportunity for both students and faculty to engage with one of the most influential scholars in social psychology. Professor Miles Hewstone, a former Professor of Social Psychology at the University of Oxford, has also held academic positions at Bristol, Mannheim, and Cardiff Universities. He is a distinguished fellow of New College, Oxford. His teaching experience makes him a globally sought-after academic. His proposed engagement with diverse student bodies enhances the value of his visit to UPES, where his lectures and workshops will offer deep insights into social cognition, intergroup relations, and prejudice reduction. Professor Hewstone will be hosted by UPES from August 20 to 31, 2024, during which he will conduct a series of educational events designed to enrich the academic experiences of both students and faculty. Prof. Atri Nautiyal, Dean of the School of Liberal Studies and Media at UPES, said, "We are proud to host Professor Miles Hewstone and are eager to witness the stimulating and inspiring discussions that will undoubtedly emerge from these events. We encourage students, faculty, and researchers to seize this rare opportunity to learn directly from one of the foremost authorities in social psychology."
